The monograph is devoted to a comprehensive study of ethnopolitical processes in the border regions of the Republic of Kazakhstan, covering their historical development, current state and impact on the national security of the country. The monograph shows the analysis of theoretical and methodological approaches to the study of ethnopolitical processes, their evolution and the role of ethnicity in the modern political context.

The work examines key theories and methods used in the analysis of ethnopolitical processes, analyzes global and regional trends in ethnopolitics, including emerging problems, studies the influence of ethnicity on political processes in Central Asia.

The legacy of Soviet national policy and its influence on modern ethnopolitical processes are assessed. An analysis of past and current interethnic conflicts and their impact on the country's national security is conducted.

The monograph presents an assessment of the current state of ethnic relations and their adaptation to changing conditions. The key areas of the Kazakh state program in the field of ethnopolitics are highlighted, and scientific and practical conclusions are presented aimed at a deeper understanding of ethnopolitical processes and their impact on the security and stability of the Republic of Kazakhstan.

The monograph is intended for students, postgraduates studying in the specialties of «Political Science», «Regional Studies», «History», «State and Local Government», university teachers, as well as for a wide range of readers who want to learn more about ethnopolitical processes in Central Asia.
